TROUBLE BETWEEN JAPAN AND UNITED STATES MOST DOUBTFUL.

WILSON IN STATEMENT

Delieves Matter Can Be Adjuster Easily When Proper Time Comes Even if California Does Not Recede.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, May 12.—The fact that Secretary Bryan has addressed an appeal to Governor Johnson of California to veto the anti-alien land law, insamuch as the governor had unofficially at least repeatedly declared his purpose to sign the bill as it passed the legislature, is taken in official torcles here as indicating either that some powerful influences have been brought to bear upon the governor in streeted in the Wilson administration is perfecting its record.

Has Double Purpose.

In this action, there may be a double purpose; first, to satisfy Japan that the federal government has done all it can to prevent the legislation under its constitutional limitations of which many diplomats contend Japan should have been aware when it entered into the treaty relations, and secondly, to place upon the state authorities of California the responsibility for any serious outcome of the anti-alien land legislation.

As the legislature is near the, end of its session it is expected that Governor Johnson's reply will be reforthcoming today or tomorrow. If he yields to Secretary Bryan's appeal the element of urgency will be re-Washington, May 12.- The fact that of its session to Governor Johnson's reply will be forthcoming today or tomorrow. If he yields to Secretary Bryan's appeal the element of urgency will be removed as Japanese land owners in California will, not be in immediate danger of loss of their property and the state department can at its leisure, embark upon negotiations with the Japanese embassy for a new treaty to replace that of 1911 and provide some permanent means of adjustment of the rights of the citizens of one country resident in the other.

Mean Legal Battle:

It has been suggested that possibly by a flat declaration that neither country shall admit the right of citizens of the other to hold land in its territory, the Japanese may be satisfied. Should Governor Johnson decide to sign the bill notwithstanding Jederal opposition, legal proceedings are almost certain to follow the first attempt of the California authorities to opposition, legal proceedings at attempt of the California authorities to escheat the property of the Japanese land holders. Probably an issue could be made up immediately by some such land holder undertaking of his land to another. Japanese in California

Cincinnati, May 12.—No attempt was made early today by the Cincinnati Traction Company whose system has been tied up since Saturday afternoon by a strike of its employes to run any of its cars. The company has about 500 imported men at its barns and it is said an effort will be made to resume service some time during the day. No reply has been received by Mayor Hunt to his letter to President Kefley Schoepf, of the Cincinnati Traction Company demanding that the company arbitrate its dispute with employes. The may or, in the letter which is considered practically as an ultimatum, said that he would begin court proceedings to place the company in the hands of a receiver and to annul its franchise if his prospoal were not accepted by six tonight.

NO TAX REMISSION WILL BE POSSIBLE

Heavy Appropriations by Present Legislature Will Take All Funds Available.

Ispectal to the gazette.]

Madison. Wis., May 12.—In view of the excessively large tax remission last year with a consequent embarrassment in meeting certain large appropriations, it is probable the state authorities will decide not to remit any taxes this year. About $2,000.00 was remitted last year, including the university state normal school and state capitol levies. It is said that the available revenues of the state will be exhausted by the legislature and by the budget which is yet to be presented. Many of the measure carrying appropriations are so drawn, however, that the funds provided cannot be obtained until March 1, 1914. This will relieve the situation in some degree. California.

President Wilson, believes negotia tions between Japan and the United States over the alien land legislation in California, are not in an alarming state, but that the interchange of the British Isles celebrated Whit Monday which is a general holiday between Japan and friendly lines, calculated to remove the appearance of discrimination against Japan's subjects.

The president discussing the subject interference with the pastime of the men of the British Isles celebrated Whit Monday which is a general holiday bere by burning down the headquarter of the Nottingham Boar Club, on the banks of the river Tremp. The structure which contained many valuable racing and other skiffs was destroyed with a loss of $10,000.

COMMENCE SECOND TRIAL

OF HAROLD F. HENWOOD Second trial of the president revealed that the ready which altracted country-wide attention two years ago was called in the West Side criminal court today for its second trial. On the president revealed that the Japan's protest was not founded upon a claim that the treaty would be broken in any way, but upon the feeling that there was an effort to discriminate against Japanese on the grounds of their alleged ineligibility to citizenship.

The president revealed that the question of naturalization had not yet entered the discussion with the Japanese ambassador, but that of course underlying the bill' it was realized that federal courts had not finally passed upon the question of eligibility.

It was upon this basis that Japanese were not accorded the privilege of citizenship that the appearance of discrimination written in the bill has arisen and it was intimated at the White House that for the present the house that the legislation in California either would be be voted by Governor Johnson or delayed by a referendum to permit smoothing over some of the features of the situation. President Wilson endeavored' to make it plain that the greatest frankness had prevalled between the two governments and to the abandonment of imany diplomatic formalities. The conferences thus far between Secretary Bryan and President Wilson and the Japanese ambassador were described as being those of "one gentleman to another."

O'CONNELL RELATES VERSION OF STORY

Confirms' Testimony of O'Hara in Immorality Investigation.

Chicago, May 12.—When the state senate committee investigating an allegation of immorality against Lieutenant Governor Barrett O'Hara, resumed its hearing today, William L. O'Connell treasurer of Cook county, was sworn in as a witness. O'Congol's testimony confirms that of the lieutenant governor on Saturday. It was through the former treasurer that O'Hara received his definite information of the Maude Roinson affidavit. O'Connell said that she was visited by Deputy Sheriff Richard M. Sullivan, a friend of Samuel Dayls, a liquor dealer of Springfield, Ill., with information of the existence of the affidavit. In effect Sullivan's communication was that unless O'Hara curbed the vice commission at Springfield, the affidavit would be made the basis of public charges. This document made no direct charge of immorality, but related circumstance which might be construed as supporting such a charge. O'Connell talked the matter over with O'Hara and in the end advised O'Hara to let the alleged "frame-up" against O'Connell talked the matter over with O'Hara and in the end advised O'Hara to let the alleged "frame-up" against him run its course.

O'Connell explained that Sullivan came to him because O'Connell was a friend of the administration and might be interested in preventing a scandal. Sullivan told O'Connell that Davis had been summoned as a witness before the vice commission of which O'Hara is the chairman, at its first sitting at Springfield, but that he

When O'Hara was on the stand last Saturday he declared that reports had reached the commission that Davis was interested in resorts of unsavory reputation in Springfield and the commission wished to obtain his evidence on the point. The commission adjourned without hearing Davis.

O'Hara said that he understood it was Davis' original intention to produce the affidavit at that session or to have women of the underworld called as witnesses suddenly turn on O'Hara while testifying and declare hat the leader was a frequenter of their resorts.

WRECK NEAR MONROE DELAYS ALL TRAINS TO MINERAL POINT

Eight Freight Cars Derailed in Accident-Local Train Crew Escapes Uninjured.

On receiving word that an extra west bound St. Paul reight train was derailed Sunday noon four miles west of Monroe the Janesville wrecker was immediately ordered out in charge of Dan Davey. Eight cars left the track on a curve just past the Honey Creek bridge. No one was injured.

Although the cars rolled down a high embankment badly damaging the track the Janesville wrecker aided by the derrick which was sent out later from Milwaukee, cleared away the debris so that traffic was resumed over the line this morning. The early train from Mineral Point was the first over the route since the accident.

Had Local Crew.

The train was in charge of Conductor W. McCue and Engineer Edward. Smith, both of this city.

At the spot that the cars left the track there is a sharp curve and the train was going at a fair rate of speed at the end of a steep grade. The track is laid upon a high embankment and the eight cars which jumped the track were thrown down the bank. All were loaded with mercandise which was spilled along the right of way for some distance. After the wrecking crews had repaired the damage a train was sent out from Janes-Had Local Crew Better values is our motto. Our size a train was sent out from stock of underwear is complete—med-ville and the merchandise was ville and the merchandise was loaded on to this and sent to its destination.

Serious Wreck.

From all reports the wreck was a serious one and the cars were damaged considerably by the force of impact and the roll down the embankment. Railroad men state that the most probable cause of the derailment was something dragging on the track most probable cause of the derailment was something dragging on the track for on investigation showed marks along the road bed indicating that a brakebeam or some part of the car had become detached from the car. When the train was passing around the curve the dragging part was sufficient to send the eight cars off the track.

The St. Paul road did not suffer as much as the Northwestern in the ich as the Northwestern in the eck near Afton as the cars were not completely demolished. Several the freight cars had the truck ped off but all of them will be sent the car shops.

Clear Afton Wreck.

The work of clearing the track of the wreckage that was a result of a derailment of an extra south bound reight, on the Northwestern line, which took place early Saturday morning four miles north of Beloit was finished late Saturday evening and the first train was sent over the line at six forty-five that evening.

Section men from Janesville, Beloit and Afton were rushed to the wrock immediately after it had happened and were put to work in unloading lumber from two of the cars. The Baraboo wracker was sent down by he way of Afton and dumped the cars that could not be replared down the embankment. Late last evening these cars were burned. Several of the cars are not damaged to any great degree and these will be hauled to the thous for repairs.

Heart to Heart

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

WHEN I WAS A BOY.

It is but seldom that I see the pleasant Ohio countryside where I dreamed away my boyhood, yet, in truth, I see It every night and every day.

For we have other eyes than those of the physical vision, and the scenes that we love are never lost to the eyes

Even yet I race barefooted over the hills, tramp along the paths of the cow pastures and through the woods, run way and go fishing, swim in the old creek, eat pawpaws, persimmons and wild gropes, play Indian dig boles with my bare toes in the sands of the road and do all the other delightful things that are done in Boyland.

the same wide eyed wonder I used to know. They watch ants, tonds, 'darning needles" and bugs with all the fascination I once felt and are quite as active citizens of the republic of Boy land us was their dad before them.

Thus not only in memory, but vicari ously, through these lads of mine do I renew my youth.

It is great to be a boy and greater to keep the heart of a boy through all the long and dusty ways of manhood. Would I be a boy again? I don't know. There are two sides to that question. But would I be a boy at ways? Yes, a thousand times yes There is only one side to that If I were actually a boy again maybe would not find the same wife and have the same four boys I now have. That is a thought that makes one gasp.

You see, we would take fearful chances by going back. But by being a boy always we take no chances except the chances of happiness. It is a fearful thing to grow old in mind and body both, but a beautiful thing to grow old in body alone while keeping young in thought. For he who becomes aged in heart dles a thousand deaths, but he who is young inside never dies at all, but has drunk of the waters of immortality. And in the process of keeping our hearts young children help, especially etc, believing that some day it might be of value. Several lives are lost, and suspicion of having set fire to his own establishment for the insurance benefit is cast upon Vivanti He is tried, found guilty and sentenced to prison for life. Marny prospers, and becoming conscious of the wrong he has done adonts Vivanti's young daughter to make amends to his conscience. After thirteen years in prison, Vivanti makes his escape. Disguised as a rag picker, he begins a new life in search of his daughter and of information that will prove his innocence. He takes up his abode in an inn of low repute and begins his search. Amongst the crowd of assembled ruffians and drunkards is Tonio. Tonio has been living a care-free life since his crime, depending upon money extorted from Marny for his existence. Vivanti adopts the name of "Old Andrew," that he may conceal his identity. Soon after his entrance to the inn. Old Andrew is set upon by Tonio, but the difference is patched up and they become fast friends His money exhausted. Tonio visits"Marny and makes demands for more. He is refused, but Marny yields when shown the telltale card. He barters with Tonio, and a price is put upon the card. The money is paid, and after a scuffle Tonio snatches the card away from Marny and departs with both money and card. Tonio returns to the inn intoxicated and exhibits the money to Old Andrew. He accidentally drops the cards and falls into a drunken sleep. While picking over his rage Old Andrew sees the card on the floor, and noting the writing etc. it comes to him that Marny is the one guilty of the crime of which he had been charged. Vowing vengeance upon Marny, he hastens to his home. On his way to Marny's rooms, he passes his daughter, Lydla now grown ito womanhood and Marny's son. He does not recognize his daughter, and she shrinks from what she supposes to be an intruding ruffian. He finds Marny in his room, and by aid of the card convicts Marny. He is about to do violence to Marny when he is bade look from the window." Marny explains that the loving pair he observes is "your daughter and my son; now strike if you will." With supreme selfsacrifice Old Andrew withdraws, leaving his daughter to her happiness and ignorant of his existence. At the inn Tonio has awakened trom his drunken slumber to find that the card has gone, and believing that it has been taken by the agents of Marny, hastens to his home in a frenzy. He gains admission to the house through the cellar grating, and demented with rage at having lost the blackmailing card, fires the house. Old Andrew, wending his way up a hill on the outskirts of the town. turns for a farewell look toward his daughter's home and sees the palace in flames. He hastens back to her rescue. In the man-sion the scene has become terribly dramatic. Tonio, struggling in his own trap, perishes in the flames." Livid tengues of flame leap out through the mansion and the occupants rush about leap out through the mansion and the occupants rush about frantically. Then through the flames and up the staircase comes Old Andrew, bent upon his daughter's rescue. He finds, however that she has already, been carried to safety by Marny's son and that Marny alone of the occupants has been left to his fate. Parts of the floor have fallen, the staircase is ablaze, and flames are licking the entire building when Old Andrew makes his way up the stairway to the rescue of his enemy. He wrenches a door from its hinges, bridges over a part of the fallen floor and finally comes upon Marny lying prostrate upon the drawing room floor. He carries him out to the stairway, but finds that the flames have bearen him and part of the stairs have been burned away. Rescuer and rescued hang in a perilous position supported only by Old Andrew's firm grip on a pillar, until the fire-fighters arrive, who spread a life-net, and catch the two men as they fall. Marny receives mortal injuries and is dying. Upon his deathbed he confesses his guilt and tells Lydia that she is the daughter of Old Andrew. Weeping over the bier of Marny Lydia and her, sweetheart find that although they have found another in the Palace of Flames.

BUSINESS PROPOSITION

The Proposition to Patronize Home Industries and Build Up Your Home Community is Not Founded Solely on Patriotism and Civic Pride. It is Grounded in Sound Eusiness Principle.

(Copyrighted 1912, by Edgar Taylor Wheelock.)

No man has a right to criticise another for trying to better his condition. It is every man's duty to do that very thing.

In purchasing those things that are necessary for his comfort and maintenance, it is every man's right and duty to make the best bargain he can.

These statements of truth are axiomatic. They are so unquestionably true that argument is not required to prove them.

. Must Strike a Balance.

But if in making a deal, a gain in one direction is offset by a loss in another, it is necessary to strike a balance before the net gain or loss can be ascertained. An apparent gain may prove to be an actual loss when the balance is struck.

Take the case of a farmer, for instance. Every farmer is a business man. He works with his hands, it is true, but he also works, or should, with his head. The more he uses his head in his business, the more prosperous he becomes perous he becomes.

He sells and he buys. He is a producer and a consumer. In order that he may consume, he must first produce. To the end that he may procure that with which to buy what he consumes, he must first sell that

The Home Town Market.

The farmer's market is the local town. If it be a good market, he should support it by every means in his power, in order that it may become better. If it fails in any particular to meet his demands, he should study and co-operate with his fellow citizens to build it up and make it Does the patron of the catlogue house follow this course. Does he not, on the contrary, do all in his power to destroy his home market?

By contributing to the destruction of his home marketing and trading center the catalogue buyer decreases his own earning capacity. Here is an actual loss to offset the apparent gain he may make in the alleged low cost of the goods he buys away from home.

Dry rot, the sleeping sickness and general shiftlessness take the places of ambition, energy and progressiveness.

The Greatest Loss of All,

The young men and women who have a desire to accomplish something before they are too old to do things worth while leave town and go to the clties, where they too frequently become victims of the nerve-racking, soul-destroying conditions that are incidental to the congested centers of population.

These are some of the losses that must be charged up against the problematical profits found in the mail order trader's catalogues. And they are real, tangible business losses. If all the facts could be gathered with respect to any town suffering from the catalogue trading affliction, the losses of this character could be partly expressed in terms of dollars and cents. Then there would remain over a social and moral loss that, can never be measured.

Let the mail order trader think on these things.

HALF HEALTH.

WONDER if anything in the world spoils more happiness and mars more efficiency than the miserable condition of half health in which so many people drag through their existence and never know what living really is.

The man who is out and out sick usually realizes his condition and tries to improve it

But the man or woman who is neither sick nor well, who is continually in that miserable half-way condition which I call half health, seldom tries to improve.

to improve.

He can get along somehow, he can earn his living and eat his meals and take his pleasures somehow or othre, and since he has never known or has forgotten the keenness, the vitality, the power, the zest, which real health can put into life, he is sluggishly content to live in half health to the end of his days, to miss half the joy of labor and half the relish of pleasure, to so impair his own efficiency that he can do but half his rightful share of the world's work, and, worst of all, to pass on the miserable heritage of half health to his children. Have you good health-vigorous, vital happy, good

Or have you half health—miserable, nervous; inefficient, sick-every-now-and-then, tired-most-of-the-time half health?

Are you getting the most out of your life or only a small fraction of its possibilities?

We shall pass this way but once and we must get all we are going to get out of life, here and now. Why not make a resolution today that you will be done with half health forever, that you will start right now to win real health for your self and get the most out of life?

A certain well known woman, who conducts classes in salesmanship all over the country, always talks to her pupils first of all about their diet, the need for daily exercise and the amount of sleep needful, etc. She considers this an important part of a course in salesmanship because, as she tells her pupils, good health is a duty an employe owes his employer.

How much more do we owe than good health to ourselves, to those who have to live with us and to those who are to come after us and inherit our health or lack of it.

The duty of health is something which is seldom snoken of Nevarthelactic in the self-course of the self-course in the self-course of the self-course of

Blue Enameled Ware

Don't stop to wash the dishes tomorrow-let em go till you get back from this sale for it's going to be the biggest sale we've ever been able to offer you-a 59-cent sale of the famous Cream City Blue Enameled Ware.

Of course, you know the kind of quality that the name "Cream City" guarantees you but you can't possibly realize the remarkable values in this sale until you see the articles with your own eyes. Not one of the lot sells regularly for less than 75 cents—and values range from that up to $1.00. Think of it—a little more than half price for most of the ware in this sale. Can you afford to miss this opportunity? We should say Not. For the manufacturers, Geuder, Paeschke & Frey Co., of Milwaukee, won't supply us with more Cream City Ware to sell at this 59-cent price after this sale is over. WOMANLY GREATNESS IN HUMBLE VIRTUES

THE REV. FRANK VAN VOORHIS, DELIVERS MOTHERS' DAY SERMON.

HOME HIGHEST PLACE

Motherhood Greatest Responsibility to Which Woman Can be Called— The Shunamite Woman.

The Shunamite Woman.

"Motherhood is the greatest responsibility to which woman can aspire and the care of a home is the hignest position to which she can be caned," said the Rev. Frank Van Voorhis, pastor of the Christian (Disciples) church in a "Mother's Day" sermon delivered yesterday morning:

"Greatness in woman," he said, "does not consist in wealth, in display, in fame, or alone in those other more substantial attributes by which the world measures greatness. It includes the more homely virtues of hospitality, generosity. Judiciousness, comomn sense, naturalness, balance, motherly love and godliness."

The Rev. Van Voorhis took for his theme Chapter IV of the second book of Kings relating the story of the Shunamite woman whom the scriptures say was a great woman.

"We are led to understand," he said, "that she was a wealthy woman, not wanting the necessities and the comforts of life, and having servants at her beck and call. All this no doubt gave her standing in the community, and commanded respect for her, but it did not constitute her greatness.

"It is in her relations with the prophet Elisha that her qualities of womanly strength were revealed. We are told that "she constrained the prophet to eat breads." She was of a charitable and hospitable disposition, and as often as he passed by the prophet was her guest. With her keen perception she read his character and learned that he was a holy man of God.

"When this truth dawned upon her, her hospitality expended and she sur-learned that he was a holy man of God.

"When this truth dawned upon her, her hospitality expanded, and she suggested to her husband that they build a chamber for him pron the wall, and provide for his use a bed, a table, and a candle stick. The furnishings were meagre, it is true, but they were sufficient, and spoke of her good sense and frugality.

"There is a lesson for us in this simplicity of life, shorn of ostentation and display, natural and unaffected. No small measure of our troubles come from straining after the things that do not satisfy, the gift and the tinsel of existence. We are disposed to live beyond our means and we pay dearly for it in broken health and broken lives.

"Elisha was not unmindful of the kindness shown him and sought to repay the woman who had opened to him her home. A word of favor to the king or the Captain of the Host might have been hers for the asking but she cared not for fame, or applause, or a place in countly circles. She was content to be useful in her own sphere and replied, "Ledwell among my own people."

people."
"But Gehazar the servant of the prophet knew that the Shunamite woman longed, sincerely, for that which she had not been offered, and spoke in her behad? Yerlly she hath no child, and her husband is old were a role of the husband is old were a role of the role of the

Of Epworth rules and Sunday schools it might print all the tidings; of picnic jaunts in woodland haunts afar from railway sidings. And if some duck should run amuck and kill a gross of people, the sheet must tell about the bell bought for the village steeple. The sheet must skip the sporting tip, all news of Luth McCarty, and print a ream about the cream served up at Jimpson's party. This scheme of Works sure beats the Turks—may guardian angels speed it! Oh, such a sheet would be too sweet but who in Troy would read it? Senator Works should hire some clerks, engage a legislature—to tell for years like brindled steers reforming human nature. THE "Caloric" does better cooking and baking than is possible by any other method. That may sound like a strong statement to you who do not know the possibilities of this wonderful time and labor saving stove, but it is founded upon absolute results. Foods cooked in the "Caloric" are far more nutritions and palatable. The delicate, delicious flavor of meats are far more savory when cooked the "Calorie" way, because none of the wholesomeness is lost by evaporation.

The "Caloric" roasts and bakes food in its raw state without first partially cooking it in an ordinary stove or reheating it before serving.

If you have never tasted food cooked in the 'Caloric' Cookstove you cannot realize the vast difference in flavor.

"What is that?" Listen!" said he. Dunwody heard him and as the coach pulled up thrust his head out of the window. The sound was repeated. "I hear it," cried he. "Rifle firing! I'm afraid we're going to be too late. Drive on, there, fast!"

Finally they reached the point in the road just below the shut-in, where the hills fell back in the approach to the little circular valley. Dunwody's gaze was bent eagerly out and ahead. "My God!" he exclaimed at length. "We are too late! Look!"

At the same moment there came excited cries from the horsemen who followed. Easily visible now against the black background of the night there showed a flower of light, rising and falling, strengthening.

"Drive!" cried Dunwody; and now the sting of the lash urged on the weary team. They swung around the turn of the shut-in and came at full speed into the approach across the valley. Before them lay the great Tallwoods mansion house. It stood before them a pillar of a vast and cleansing catastrophe soon to come to that state and this nation: a catastrophe which alone could lay the specter in our nation's house. They were in time to see the last of the disaster, but too late to offer remwhen once more he came back, blinded luxurlant, riotous, never had animated edy. By the time the coach had pulled and staggering. This time arms reachthis pallid form or else had long years fore the yet more rapid horsemen had flung themselves from their saddles, shrouding smoke, to a place of sarety. the end easily was to be guessed. The house had been fired in a balf score treaks of flame were reaching up to the cornice, casting all the front portion of the house and the lawn which shrubbery and trees thus outlined showed black and grim.

The men of the Tallwoods party dashed here and there among the covering of trees back of the house. There were shots, hastily exchanged, glimmses of forms slinking away across the fields. But the attacking party had done their work and now, alarmed by the sudden appearance of a resistance stronger than they had expected, were making their escape. Once in awhite there was heard a lond, derisive shout, now and again the crack of a spiteful rifle, resounding in echoes against the hillsides.

Dunwody was among the first to disappear in search of these besiegers. For an instant Josephine was left alone, undecided, alarmed, in front of the great doors. Eleazar, to save the plunging team, had now wheeled the vehicle back and was seeking a place for it lower down the lawn. It was as she stood thus besitant that there approached her from some point in the hushes a disheveled figure. Turning, she recognized none other than old Sally her former jailer and some time

"Sally!" she cried. "Sally, what is it? Who has done this? Where are they? What is it all about? Can't anything be done? But Sally, terrified beyond reason, could exclaim only: "Whali is be?

Whah's Mr. Dunwody? Quick!" An instant later she, too, was gone.

At the same moment Dunwedy, weapon in hand, dashed around the corner of the house and up on the they dured not go closer. corner of the house and up on the front gallery. bent upon reaching some point deep in the interior.

Others saw this and joined in her ery of terror. The interior of the hall, thus disclosed by the opening of the doors, seemed but a mass of flames. An instant later Dunwody staggered back, his arm across his face. His hair was smoking, the mustaches half burned from his lips. He gasped for breath, but, revived by air, drew his bars appeared across a window. Unable to do anything, those who had witnessed such scenes scarce found it possible to depart. They stood about, whispering or remaining silent, some regarding the smoldering ruin. Once in a while a head was turned over shoulder toward a bowed form which sat close under a sheltering tree upon the lawn. "He is taking it mighty hard." said this or that neighbor. "Lost nigh about everything be had in the world." But still his bowed form, stern in its sentinelship, guarded the something concealed behind the shadows. And still "Come," he said. He led her a pace or so about the scanty wall of shrubbery. He pulled back a bit of old and faded silk, a woman's garment of years ago, from the on a tiny cot scarce larger than a

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Dally Cazette, May 12, 1873.—Church Debt: On Saturday the board of trustees of the Court etreet. Mr. E. church came together and voted to give up their beautiful house of worship and disband the society which had so earnestly labored to perputate the name of the organization and render a blessing to mankind. Yesterday noon after the close of the morning service, the members of the morning service, the members of the society by a formal vote ratified the action of the board of trustees. This business proceeding places the church in the category of what was but is not. Among the institutions of our city it has a past, but no present or apparent future.

tions of our city it has a past, but no present or apparent future.

Last evening the Rev E. D. Hamley pastor of the church, addressed for the last time from the pulpit in which he has so devotedly labored during the six months of his stay in this city. An immense crowd was present to hear the farewell sermon of the pastor.

The Georgia minstrels succeeded

The Georgia ministrels succeeded in furnishing a full bill of fun on Saturday night, and many of their performances were new, original and intensely African. The laugh came without any effort. The opera house was filled and all the spectators were in the best of humon. The spiritual discussion between Messrs. Jones and Stewart, which occupied three days of last week, closed on Saturday night. A fair sized audience was present and an animated on Saturday night. A fair sized audience was present and an animated controversy edified and amused the attendance. No decision was given.
